Hollye R. Mann concentrates her practice on policyholder-only insurance recovery litigation with an emphasis on complex coverage disputes under various lines of insurance.

Her experience spans several major lines of insurance and types of coverage matters, including errors and omissions and professional liability; comprehensive general liability; environmental, asbestos, and products liability; and pharmaceutical and medical devices.

Before joining Blank Rome, Hollye was general counsel and chief executive officer of a start-up technology consulting company. Prior to that, she worked for 15 years with many of the firm's attorneys at Dickstein Shapiro before they joined Blank Rome in 2016. While with Dickstein Shapiro, Hollye was an attorney in the insurance coverage and state attorneys general practices and oversaw the risk, compliance, and practice solutions functions at the firm, including responsibility for data privacy, cybersecurity, and e-discovery.

Outside The Firm

Hollye enjoys traveling, spending time on the coast, long walks in the woods with her dogs, plant-based cooking, and hanging out with her family and friends.
