For more than ten years, Kate Tavella has focused on developing and implementing strategic communications initiatives at Blank Rome. In her role as director of communications, Kate leads internal and external communications efforts across all of the Firm's offices and practices, working directly with the leadership team, attorneys, pro bono and diversity committees, and administrative departments on media relations, content development, social media, messaging, and special projects.

Prior to joining Blank Rome, Kate led media relations efforts for a number of clinical and research departments at the University of Pennsylvania Health System. She started her career at a healthcare communications agency, working with leading pharmaceutical companies on public relations campaigns.

Kate received her B.A. in communications from Rowan University.
