Kayla M. Loveless concentrates her practice on a wide range of labor and employment law compliance and litigation matters.

Kayla has significant experience advising clients on relevant laws and best practices for handling employment needs, investigating and evaluating allegations of discrimination, harassment, and retaliation under federal and state statutes, as well as drafting pleadings, discovery requests, discovery responses, substantive motions, non-solicitation agreements, settlement agreements, policies and procedures, and severance agreements. Kayla has successfully tried cases before the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (“OSHA”) Office of Administrative Law Judges (“OALJ”).

Along with her labor and employment representation, Kayla has notable experience advising companies on implementing best practices related to diversity, equity, and inclusion, including those pertaining to the recruitment and retention of employees. In March 2022, Kayla received her certification in Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion from Cornell University’s School of Industrial and Labor Relations. Similarly, Kayla is a continued supporter of pro bono legal work and actively provides pro-bono legal services.

Prior to joining Blank Rome, Kayla worked in St. Louis, Missouri, and Houston as a Labor and Employment associate at a national law firm. Kayla also served as an intern at the Department of Labor, an intern at the United States Attorney’s Office for the Southern District of Illinois, and an extern at the American Civil Liberties Union.

During law school, Kayla served as a member of the Washington University

Jurisprudence Review and president of the Black Law Students Association.

Outside The Firm
