Kierstan Carlson concentrates her practice on complex domestic and cross-border litigation and arbitration, as well as high-stakes government investigations. She has extensive experience representing clients in the shipping, logistics, energy, and commodities sectors, including in the following areas:

- Government Investigations: Kierstan leads and manages the defense of corporate and individual clients in civil and criminal enforcement actions by the U.S. Department of Justice (“DOJ”) and other federal and state agencies. Specific to the shipping industry, Kierstan has overseen dozens of cases involving environmental and safety laws, such as MARPOL, the Clean Water Act, and the Ports and Waterways Safety Act. She also advises clients across various sectors in investigations involving U.S. economic sanctions, the False Claims Act (“FCA”), the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act (“FCPA”), international trade and customs fraud, and other regulatory violations.
- Shipping and Commercial Litigation: Kierstan represents clients in adversarial proceedings from inception to trial or arbitration. She has handled a wide array of matters, including significant marine casualty cases and limitation of liability actions, international and domestic contract litigation and arbitration, and civil fraud cases. Kierstan also has experience leading business litigation cases in federal and state courts in the District of Columbia and Virginia.
- Administrative Litigation: Kierstan advocates on behalf of clients in litigation against the federal government, including bringing actions to challenge civil and administrative penalties, as well as suits under the Administrative Procedure Act (“APA”) to oppose agency action or regulations. She has experience contesting Customs penalties and has represented clients before the Federal Maritime Commission.

- Internal Investigations and Compliance Programs: Kierstan conducts internal investigations relating to suspected non-compliances with both the law and company policies. She works closely with clients to develop effective responses to internal misconduct and, where appropriate, to prepare voluntary disclosures to relevant authorities. Kierstan also advises clients on risk management strategies and assists with implementing and auditing compliance and risk-management programs.

Kierstan strives to provide common-sense, cost-effective representation and closely consults with clients to ensure that the approach to each matter takes all relevant business considerations into account. She has successfully achieved early resolution of both government investigations and commercial disputes and efficiently manages client’s e-discovery obligations.

PRO BONO

Kierstan is passionate about providing pro bono representation within her community and advocating for individuals who otherwise would not have access to counsel. She regularly represents clients in asylum matters, including affirmative cases before the U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services and defensive cases before the U.S. Immigration Court. In 2018, Kierstan received a “Pro Bono Star Award” from Human Rights First for her work on behalf of refugees from Central America.

Kierstan also has handled a variety of other matters in the District of Columbia, ranging from child custody and landlord-tenant cases to a federal criminal case in which she achieved dismissal of the indictment against the client.

PERSONAL BACKGROUND

Kierstan earned her undergraduate degree from Brown University and graduated cum laude from the American University Washington College of Law. During law school, she served as an articles editor for the American University International Law Review, a student attorney in the Criminal Justice Clinic, and a Meyers Distinguished Teaching Fellow for the Legal Rhetoric Program. She also worked as a law clerk at the United States Attorney’s Office for the District of New Jersey. Prior to law school, Kierstan worked as a paralegal and international trade policy analyst.

Outside The Firm

A former D1 lacrosse player, Kierstan now keeps active through spinning, lifting, hiking, and skiing.
