Michael Deiulis is a versatile litigator and trusted advisor with over a decade of experience litigating complex business disputes in state and federal courts, as well as alternative dispute resolution forums. Mike has represented individuals and companies of all sizes in high-stakes, multi-party litigations involving claims for breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, fraud, conversion, civil conspiracy, unfair trade practices, and other business torts. Mike also has extensive experience litigating intra-company disputes between partners in closely held businesses, as well as prosecuting and defending derivative lawsuits.

Although a litigator by trade, Mike is committed to understanding and advancing his clients' business objectives. Clients often engage Mike to provide strategic advice on critically important business issues, including pre-litigation contractual disputes. He collaborates closely with clients to formulate dispute avoidance and risk mitigation strategies, and, when necessary, navigate the litigation process effectively and efficiently to achieve desired results.

Outside The Firm

Mike enjoys spending time with his wife and two young daughters on the beaches of Cape Cod or skiing in the Northeast.
