CO-CHAIR, INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY LITIGATION PRACTICE GROUP

Paul Zeineddin is a lead trial lawyer with over 60 patent infringement cases in U.S. district courts and the U.S. International Trade Commission (“ITC”). Paul’s trial practice focuses on patent litigation in the communications, semiconductor, software, and consumer electronic industries and the complex issues arising related standard essential patents (“SEPs”) and their FRAND commitments. He has represented clients in connection with international FRAND and SEP policies before the United Nations and international standard-setting organizations.

Paul has also served as the lead counsel in negotiating bilateral and collective global licensing SEP deals amongst the largest communications companies in the US, Asia, and Europe. He has also worked closely with his clients as European and Asian counsel on global FRAND disputes.

Paul has a BS and an MS in electrical engineering. Before embarking on his legal career, Paul served as a senior telecommunications engineer in British Telecom and the MITRE Corporation. He also previously served as senior IP counsel at Samsung Electronics.
