Robert Kahan has extensive experience in mergers and acquisitions, particularly for mid-market companies in the lifestyle industries. His practice also includes securities, franchising, licensing, and general corporate matters. Firms in the entertainment industry often rely on Bob for advice as they structure, negotiate, and draft significant deals on behalf of their celebrity and sports clients. He has represented some of his clients for more than 40 years.

Among Bob's clients are entrepreneurs throughout the life of their businesses, high-net-worth individuals with regard to their business interests, private equity firms in conjunction with their portfolio company investments and sales, and mid-market companies. He also represents franchisors and franchisees, licensing companies, entertainers, and athletes in connection with licensing and endorsement transactions.
